The Camden Children and Learning Systemic Family Therapy Service

The Camden Children and Learning Systemic Family Therapy Service is a new initiative designed to support children and families by providing family therapy at key points of vulnerability. This service also aims to help practitioners embed more relational and systemic ways of working into everyday practice.

We want to ensure that children and families receive specialist help early, in a manner that is bespoke to their needs and will target family therapy for families alongside teams at two points of vulnerability – the first contact with services and when a child is considered to be on the edge of care. Camden recognises the adverse impact of structural inequalities and disproportionality for residents, and we are committed to creating a systemic practice context that demonstrates equitable social justice-based therapy service delivery.
